

Riana Bucceri
HTH 216-Advanced Project Based Learning

Artist Statement
Through the Lens of a Teenager

This project involves my digital photography classes. They will be creating a historical archive through their eyes about the community they live in. Students today are so involved with digital connections that the physical world becomes unimportant. I want the students to realize what a beautiful place they live in, why their physical surroundings are important, and that making connections to community members is invaluable. I feel that having them go out and document these significant locations with their cameras will not only improve their knowledge about San Diego's history, but more importantly they will connect and document with what they felt, saw, and heard while executing the project.